

Cook Islands Completes Maritime Boundaries Negotiations

Written by Administrator

Friday, 28 March 2014 14:31 - Last Updated Thursday, 10 December 2015 09:56

Cook Islands is the first Pacific nation to complete negotiations with its neighbours on its maritime boundaries.

But it has taken several years to conclude the border treaties with states like Kiribati Niue and Tokelau and involved working closely with Geoscience Australia and the Applied Geoscience and Technology Division of the Secretariat of the Pacific Community.

Listen to the full interview

Speaker: Vaipo Mataora, Technical Adviser, Maritime Boundaries Project, Cook Islands

Source: Radio Australia , 27th March, 2014